

GCIT students win medals at state leadership event

By GLOUCESTER COUNTY INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, Sewell

Recently the N.J. Health Occupation Students of America held its 31st annual State Leadership Conference at Gloucester County Institute of Technology. GCIT is proud to announce Michael Kessler won second place in the Medical Terminology competition and Christopher Coco won third place in the Medical Spelling competition.

This year 37 HOSA chapters from 20 secondary and post secondary schools throughout the state of New Jersey participated. Over the course of the two-day conference, 500 students competed in the conference.

NJ HOSA is a national organization for secondary and post secondary students enrolled in health career and health sciences courses and programs. The conference involves a series of activities designed to strengthen leadership development, technical, basic, and critical thinking skills.

■■■

GCIT student Kathleen Malloy has been selected as a World Class Student of the Week by The Business Coalition for Educational Excellence (BCEE) at the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, in partnership with Lowe's.

World Class Students are those who have challenged themselves to be the best they can be, and have completed (or are on target to complete), the World Class Students/State Scholars demanding course sequence — Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry; Biology, Chemistry, Physics; four years of college-prep English; two years of the same World Language; and three years of Social Studies, which includes a semester of Economics.

In May, Kathleen will be honored along with other 2007 World Class Students of the Week at a Forum and Celebration.

Courtesy of Gloucester County Institute of Technology

GCIT announced that Christopher Coco (left) won third place in the Medical Spelling competition and Michael Kessler (right) won second place in the Medical Terminology competition.

