

■ Madison High school honored as Benchmark School

Madison High School reports that it was named a 2007 Just for Kids, A New Jersey Benchmark School, for reaching high rates of student achievement on state tests.

Benchmark Schools are decided by the Business Coalition for Education Excellence at the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce by analyzing data from the state's High School Proficiency Assessments, GEPA (Grade Eight Proficiency Assessment) or NJ ASK (Assessment of Skills and Knowledge). In New Jersey, 73 schools received this distinction. For more information, visit www.just4kids.org.
